

HEAD OF NEW WAINWRIGHT INDUSTRY

Mr. R. A. Price, president of the new Price Oil Development and Refining Co., which is opening a laboratory in Wainwright this week, as described elsewhere in this issue.

NEW INDUSTRY TO SOON PRODUCE OILS & GREASES

The Price Oil Development and Refining Company Limited of Winnipeg are making their laboratory to completion at Wainwright. In an interview with their president, Mr. R. A. Price and their production manager, Mr. Arthur C. Renton they both stated that his plant would be shipping manufactured lubricants and grease within ten days. The capacity of this laboratory is 30 barrels of finished products per day. The directors plan starting a laboratory of the same size at Vancouver to take care of the Pacific coast trade.

The directors also plan on building in the spring, plants at Wainwright and Vancouver of the capacity of 1000 barrels per day.

As this company are manufacturing for the Canadian and Export Trade over 200 articles manufactured from mineral oil such as grease and lubricants they of necessity will be purchasing their crude from many parts of the world; but after spending several months in experimenting with Wainwright crude they find that they can manufacture 27 different articles such as black grease and tractor oil out of Wainwright crude on a very profitable basis. This is one of the reasons this plant is being built here as they are near the supply of crude oil and are geographically situated to supply the prairie province trade.

At the beginning they will manufacture only six articles from Wainwright crude oil, the balance will be made from the world's supply.

Mr. Arthur C. Renton has spent over 44 years as a lubricating expert and technologist and in order to manufacture their high grade lubricants and other products he has brought his own staff of trained experts from England to assist him. Mr. Renton spent 26 years with the Raglan & Co. of London England and Moscow, Russia holding

CROSSING THE BAR

WILBUR JAMES AMBEAU

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ambeau, of Fifth avenue east, passed away on Saturday last after an illness of only three days. The little one was only one year and 27 days old. Mr. and Mrs. Ambeau, who came from Iowa in 1918 arrived here from Edmonton about a year and a half ago. The sympathies of a large circle of acquaintances is extended to the bereaved parents. The McLeod parlors handled the arrangements for the funeral which took place on Monday with the Rev. G. Pybus of the United Church officiating.

Mr. R. Cameron who has been assisting at the Star's crematory left last night for the States.

WITH REGARD TO PROPER STUDY FOR H. SCHOOL PUPILS

Some years ago when a student first entered High School he was faced with the task of taking a certain number of compulsory subjects and passing through not subject by subject but grade by grade. If he wished to study Latin or French he could do so, but these subjects were "extra" and gave him no credit for his efforts along these lines.

About four years ago the system was changed considerably and now instead of passing by grades he passes by subjects obtaining one unit of credit for each subject successfully written off. This is called the "unit" system. Each subject is considered one unit and a student may take any desired number in one year, with the approval of the Principal. The different courses offered are: Normal Entrance Junior Matriculation, Agricultural and General. Twenty-one units are required covering usually three years of study.

The boy or girl just entering High School has, as a rule, very little idea what course is best suited to her or him. This difficulty need not concern him at this stage, however, since of the eight subjects taught in the first year, six are compulsory—Literature, Composition, History, Algebra, Geometry and General Science. He may select one or both of French and Latin which are also given. A student hoping to complete the twenty-one units in three years should take the six required ones and at least one of French or Latin. It will be seen that the student is thus given a year to decide up on his future course when more units are optional. If he is successful in obtaining even credits the first year it leaves him fourteen for the next two years or seven each each. Should he fail however in a number of these first year subjects, it may necessitate a fourth year to secure the needed twenty-one units.

While it is customary for the student to complete 21 units in three years there is no reason why pupils wishing to proceed at a slower rate should not do so.

While each unit of a year carries approximately the same amount of work, the student may find it varies by different subjects. It will vary considerably owing to their special aptitudes. Generally speaking the student on subjects should be inversely proportioned to their ability in those subjects.

WHEN A LEGACY IS NO LEGACY IS PERTINENT

Richard Dix believes in whole hearted giving. He says as himself in words that lack no emphasis in the saying. He looks ahead and delivers himself of an obituary statement.

"If I have any money when I die," he says, "I'll leave it to an heir with no strings whatever to it. Especially apron strings." He explained his enigmatical statement.

"Let me elucidate," he continued. "Take away this new role of mine in 'Paradise for Two,' which shows at the Theatre on Friday and Saturday night. Here I am cast as a full-grown young man, mentally sound, yet the fortune left me by my parents is placed by the terms of the will under the control of a testy, suspicious old uncle.

When Edmund Breese as the uncle cuts me off entirely with the warning that I don't get another cent till I'm married I am forced to trickery and so Betty Bronson is hired as the wife. There is no course but the happy ending I fall in love with her and she marries me. But this is beside the point in the present discussion.

"This business of stipulating in a will that the legatee must be married in the dark of the moon by 9.30 p.m. on Christmas Eve is the bunk."

"Yes, this is a motion picture, a comedy drama but it happens in real life. And they're not all so lucky as I am in 'Paradise for Two' for while it results in my own happy marriage."

"When you haul in your grain don't go home empty! Take back a load of Black Diamond coal from the Atlas yard. Always a full stock."

The bad roads caused an other accident south of town, which resulted in the separation of the Daniel-Martin outfit broke through the result the machine ran ahead into the engine and both were piled up in the ditch. Luckily only a little damage was done, and no one hurt.

UNITED CH. W.M.S. INTERESTING MEETING

The monthly meeting of the W.M.S. of the United church was held in the church on Tuesday afternoon when a programme of more than usual interest was given. The devotional period was led by Mrs. W. Knowles. A very interesting personal letter from the Misses Allen, missionaries in India was read by Mrs. Washburn. Mrs. L. Courner gave the watch tower message. The introductory paper on the new study book—New Paths for Old Purpose—was given by Mrs. F. Hackett who dealt in an interesting way with the new circumstances facing the Christian missionary movement in the modern world as a result of the interdependence of the nations and the difficulty of knowledge through modern means of transportation and communication.

HEALTH MINISTER EXPRESSES THANKS TIMELY ASSISTANCE

Hon. Geo. Hoadley provincial minister of health in conveying the thanks of his department for the assistance given in combating the recent outbreak of infantile paralysis writes us as follows:

"I desire to express to all Local Boards of Health, Schools Boards, Medical Officers of Health and Physicians, Railways Companies, Operators of Motor-Bus Lines, Police Officers, Newspaper Publishers and the public generally, my appreciation of the excellent co-operation given the Provincial Department of Public Health in dealing with the recent outbreak of Infantile Paralysis in the Province."

LOCAL NOTES

Owing to the weather, work on the grading and graveling of the new road to the Buffalo park has been closed down for the winter. It will be resumed as soon as the gravel pit at Kinsella opens up in the Spring. Fifty two carloads of gravel will be used on this road to the tracks.

The ladies of the Rose Willow W.I. have arranged for a social to be given by Miss Florence Torg at the Grange school on Friday, November 25th. Lunch will be served, and a real good time is assured to all. Mark up the date.

Mr. W. Misen, of Edmonton will be here for his Fair piano-tuning visit about the middle of November. Leave your order at The Star office and Mr. Misen will call and put your piano in first-class shape for Christmas.

Mrs. Jas. Young, of Edmonton, is here on a visit to her daughter Mrs. J. Ambeau of Fifth avenue east.

While Camille Massie was driving home from town on Friday evening last with a big load of lumber he got into a collision with a car driven by Mr. Mabey. One of the big horses had his leg broken and had to be shot. The pole of the wagon ruined the radiator and windshield of the Ford too. Luckily neither of the drivers were injured and as they realized that the slippery state of the roads was to blame for the trouble each had decided to foot their own logs.

Westinghouse Batteries Radio sets are the kind to get if you have electric lights. See them at Wainwright Pharmacy.

The workmen are busy at the premises recently taken by the Price Oil Development Co. fitting it up for the use of the new concern.

FIRE DESTROYS SAWYER'S GARAGE AT EDGERTON

On Wednesday last, one of the old landmarks of the village of Edgerton was totally destroyed by fire at about five o'clock in the afternoon when Sawyer's garage went up in smoke.

It appears that the fire, started in the engine room where an electric pump was running and then spread so rapidly that the volunteer fire brigade was helpless to save the building from destruction, which included also a number of automobiles which were in the garage at the time. In less than an hour the whole structure was nothing but a heap of smouldering ruins and as only a small insurance was carried the loss to the owners will be heavy.

W.I. CONVENES AT EDGERTON & ELECTS OFFICERS

Although threatening was the order of the day, the Women's Institute held their conference at Edgerton on Oct. 28th and had a splendid showing of members besides visitors from Chauvin.

Mrs. F. Parkinson, of Edgerton, constituency convener presided at the sessions held in the afternoon and evening. Reports showed a keen interest in the work and that in most cases our women are quick to see and prompt to act wherever there is need for help.

The address of welcome was given by Mrs. H. Sprout of Edgerton and was ably responded to by Mrs. Irving of Ribstone.

Mrs. Stuart read the report from the Wainwright branch with its 26 members. During the year they have raised $295.00 and this money has been spent in various ways. They had a successful millinery course.

The Ribstone report was read by Mrs. McCrea. This branch keeps first aid kits in the schools and has raised money for the Red Cross.

Mrs. Trimmer told of the work being done by the Edgerton branch. The basketry demonstration proved of great interest.

Owing to the stress of harvest demand on other branch that of Rose Willow of Heath was not represented.

Mrs. McCrea of Ribstone gave a very interesting report on Agriculture.

Mrs. Trimmer, convener of legislation gave a short talk on insurance and wills.

Mrs. Patterson of Heath read a very able paper on Education and better schools outlining work to be done as well as what has been done.

Mrs. A. H. Rogers, District Director was the principal speaker in the evening and Mr. H. E. Spencer M.P. also spoke.

The following officers were elected: Constituency Convener—Mrs. A. La-tell, Wainwright; Education and Better Schools—Mrs. A. Patterson, Heath; Legislation—Mrs. W. Warnock, Edgerton; Immigration—Mrs. W. Avison, Heath; Ribstone; Household Economics—Mrs. R. Morrison, Ribstone; Canadianization and National Events—Mrs. D. W. Parsons, Chauvin.

ANNUAL MEMORIAL SERVICES HELD HERE ON SUNDAY LAST

Fitting respects were paid to the brave men who gave their lives for King and country during the Great War at a memorial service held in the theatre of Sunday afternoon, under auspices of the Wainwright branch of the Canadian Legion when Capt. P. Bowen of Edmonton was the principal speaker of the day.

The Rev. C. Mackay, pastor of St. Andrew's church made a very efficient chairman and a truly impressive service was held.

Capt. Bowen in a thrilling address, recalled days in the early part of the war to illustrate the courage and endurance of the men who had gladly died that we of today might live in continued peace and comfort, and both Rev. A. Love vicar of St. Thomas' church and the chairman pointed out the great lessons to be learned from the sufferings of the men who had died in the European struggle years ago which caused the gathering present.

Great credit is due the choir of the United church who led the hearty singing of a number of well known hymns and for other musical numbers and to Capt. W. Edwards for his excellent rendition of Kipling's "Recessional". During the afternoon, Mrs. H. Courrier recited "In Flanders Fields" in her usual inimitable manner.

The parade of veterans numbered upwards of fifty men.

Got your winter underwear yet? Better take advantage of the big sale at Armstrong's. Sale closes Saturday night.

They are still making hole at the Ribstone Hotel at Dumont and David Credille and his crew are so competent that the figures he can continue working all winter.

Mrs. E. Knight of Edmonton is here for a short visit with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Brown.

ALBERTA TRADE WITH ORIENT PROMISING

Good prospects for the exportation of Alberta livestock to Japan now exist as a result of the visit to Captain T. Kawakami of Yokohama, who has spent the past month looking into conditions in this province. Following the visit of H. A. Craig deputy minister of agriculture to the Orient two years ago and the trial shipment of stock sent over at that time, the extensive interests in Japan which Captain Kawakami represents are interested in the importation of beef cattle for slaughter and beef and dairy cattle, horses and swine, for breeding purposes on a scale which will greatly increase the volume of Alberta's trade with the far East, if the plans at present contemplated materialize.

The annual bazaar under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League will be held in the old Walton store on Saturday afternoon. As a splendid assortment of fancy work, dress goods and novelty packages will be on display, come and do some Christmas shopping where you may find just what you want at a very reasonable price. Lunches will be served.

GOVERNMENT KEEPS CLOSE CHECK ON ALCOHOLIC DRINKS

Absolutely no deviation from the maximum standard of alcoholic content permitted by law in beer or ale allowed to be sold in hotel beer rooms will be countenanced by the liquor branch of the Alberta government according to Liquor Commissioner B. J. Dinning in referring to a recent order directing the withdrawal of a certain eastern ale from sale in the beer rooms of the province.

"At the request of a number of citizens," said Mr. Dinning, "we allowed this brand of ale to be stocked in the beer rooms on a guarantee of the eastern company making it that the alcoholic content would not exceed 4.5 per cent by weight, the maximum fixed by the Alberta law. The government chemist analysed samples from the first shipments and found them to contain 4.4 alcoholic content by weight which was within the law."

"Similar tests, however, of the second shipment showed alcoholic content of 4.55 per cent. This was above the legal maximum and we accordingly issued an order directing the withdrawal of the product from the beer rooms until we have some further assurance from the company manufacturing it that the alcoholic content will be kept within legal maximum."

NEWCOMER TO WAINWRIGHT PASSES SUDDENLY SUNDAY

Mr. Charles Edward Church, who has been farming with his nephew Mr. S. Ranney on the old Dawson place north of town, passed away on Sunday last after having been seized with a stroke, at the age of 70 years.

From what we learn the late Mr. Church was in town at the residence of Mr. Clifford Church, paying a visit to his only brother Mr. Jim Church, who has been lying there sick for several weeks. He was prepared to attend church on Sunday morning and had just finished singing his favorite hymn at the piano. He left the house and got to the sidewalk when he returned indoors and said he didn't feel well. He sat down into a chair, and medical help was at once summoned, but the deceased passed into unconsciousness from which he never rallied and at five o'clock in the afternoon he passed to the great beyond.

The late Mr. Church was born in Leeds, Que., on January 9th, 1857, and was thus in his 71st year. His wife predeceased him many years ago and had an only son, who was all through the Great War, died from the flu after passing unscathed through the whole war and getting safely back to England. His only other relative was Mr. Jim Church, his brother.

He came to Wainwright some eight months ago from Waterville, Que., in company with his nephew and the two were farming as stated above.

The funeral was held on Tuesday from St. Thomas' church where the vicar, Rev. A. Love conducted the service, as also at the Wainwright cemetery where interment was made. McLeod's parlors had charge of the arrangements.

The sympathies of the whole countryside are expressed to those left to mourn the loss, among whom are several nieces and nephews in this district.

WEDDING BELLS

ELFORD-HENDERSON

A quite wedding was solemnized by the Rev. G. Pybus at the United Church house on Wednesday evening November 9th when Mr. Herbert Elford and Mrs. Zora Moon Henderson both of Irma were united in marriage. The ceremony was witnessed by Mrs. A. F. Watson and Mrs. Pybus. After a brief stay at Irma the happy couple will leave for the coast where they will reside.

CHAPTER I

Snapping off a rose as she danced past a bush of great crimson beauties, Dolores brought her dance to an end and tossed the blossom to her grandfather with a smile and kiss waited from her finger tips.

Don Luis sprang gracefully to his feet and catching the rose in mid air
he possessed of it.

"That was not for you, objecte Dolores."

"Sweet senorita," he pleaded ardently
"be a little kind. I must start back home now—tell me when I may come again?" His eyes did not leave her face and the rose was held in his slender hand.

"Give me the flower, or you may never come again." She waited impatiently.

"You will be mine!" and bowing low he returned the red rose to her with such a good grace that she flashed him her most winning smile of friendly forgiveness.

"Come when you please—you know grandfather likes to have you."

"And you? Are you perhaps a little tired when I come?"

"A little—yes." Then when she saw how hurt he appeared she added quickly, "Some often, as you always have,
we both like to have you."

Don Luis could not determine whether her interest in him was mere politeness or something warmer controlled by her rigid ideas of girlish modesty.
But to him it did not matter—he wanted her admission.

"I shall say adios, near Senorita," he said bowing low over her hand and hurry away so there will be no delay
in returning to you again!"

After bidding farewell to old Vasquez Don Luis went to the stable yard
for his horse and took a short route to the city.

CHAPTER III

Love at First Sight.

After watching Don Luis depart for San Francisco, Dolores turned toward the archway and noticed that two men were observing her from the private driveway in front of the hacienda. She shrank back in embarrassment and concealed herself behind a bush of roses. But it was too late.
They had been watching her the little scene she danced for her supposed audience of three.

One man was Michael Brandon, a heavy set, well groomed pugacious individual who resembled a well cared for bulldog that was full of fight and ready to attack on the slightest provocation. By profession he was a lawyer and represented a powerful faction in San Francisco. His purpose in life was to make money regardless of individual rights or the law he knew so well how to get around. It is not quite just to credit Brandon with all bad qualities, yet he probably deserved the classification as he took pains to conceal the good traits that were a childhood inheritance.

The other uninvited caller was his nephew Terrance O'Shaughnessy.
Only fine things could be said about Terry. The untimely accidental death of his father left him alone and when the affairs were being settled he came according a written request to the effect
that in any kind of trouble he was to appeal to his mother's wealthy lawyer
brother in San Francisco. Thus it developed that Brandon settled the es-

late and took Terry into the law of fice. Terry was only twenty-three and still believed there were many things worth while in the world besides graft and money. His admiration for the vivid Spanish girl dancing in the patio
was a case in point.

"Wonderful!" he exclaimed as much to himself as to his uncle. "I never saw anything more beautiful."

Brandon shot him a swift glance
"That's what's the matter, with these foreigners, he shifted his long cigar to the other end of his mouth. "Always dreaming and playing acting and never tending to business" Brandon's eyes roved speculatively over the neglected ranch.

"Why worry about business when you can watch a girl like that? Terry was more alert at detecting genuine charm than in recognizing a good business proposition.

When Vasquez returned from the stable yard after seeing Don Luis off on his horse he was surprised to find Dolores trying to signal him from her place of concealment beside the rose bush. Following her excited hand waving and saw the cause of her alarm.

Visitors were most infrequent at the ranch but Vasquez instinctively felt that the newcomers were gentlemen.
Immediately he became the courteous dignified old grandee welcoming his guests.

"Senors won't you come in?" he called cordially.

As Dolores saw the men approach
she was seized with a sudden panic.
They had spied while she had danced and she had a timidity about meeting them. Like a frightened deer looking about for the means of escape she darted up the steps to the overhanging balcony, where unseen by the men below
she proceeded to do the very thing she had just criticized in the strangers.

"Welcome Senors," greeted Vasquez
bowing low.

Brandon acknowledged the salutation by removing his cigar. "I have come on a matter of important business, which I am sure will be greatly to your advantage, he announced im-promptly, presenting his card.

Vasquez examined it meaninglessly.
A card meant nothing to him. He much preferred the warm clasp of a friendly hand.

"This is my nephew Mr O'Shaughnessy" introduced Brandon.

Vasquez again bowed politely.

Terry wanted to offer his hand but a little awe by the old man's grand manner, could only nod; besides he was wondering what became of the beautiful dancer. She had disappeared as quickly and mysteriously as the lovely worshipped fairies of his own native Ireland.

"We will be more comfortable inside
suggested Vasquez waving his guests into the spacious living room.

As they disappeared beneath the balcony Dolores came down the steps and watched them enter the hacienda.

Without knowing why, or what she was singing a song burst from her heart. She had discovered that the affairs were being settled he came according a written request to the effect
that in any kind of trouble he was to
appeal to his mother's wealthy lawyer
brother in San Francisco. Thus it developed that Brandon settled the es-

afternoon light.

"Well let's put down to brass the I'm going to buy your ranch." He twisted his cigar between firm teeth and watched Vasquez narrowly.

"Let us not hurry senor," Vasquez managed to say; he even smiled as if Brandon's cute manner of putting the ranch must be overlooked. To a Vasquez, business is never so important as hospitality to his guests.

The same peon who had accompanied Dolores on the guitar entered at this moment with a colob covered bottle from which he filled three quintine wine glasses. He handed the bottle with a reverence almost amounting to veneration. The ceremony over he withdrew.

"To your health senors!" toasted Vasquez. He sipped his wine in keen enjoyment.

Terry followed his example with a deep respect for the old grandee's courtly manner and traditional background; but Brandon drained his glass at a gulp, rested his arms on the table and said:

"Well let's go. I have some papers here."

Terry had been searching for an excuse to return to the patio and find the dancer. His uncle's statement offered a pretense and he seized it.

"Your papers are in the brief case—in the carriage—I'll get them," he interrupted and rising hastily backed toward the patio door.

"Never mind," Brandon impatiently, "it is not necessary—I have all I need at present."

But Terry was determined to see more of the girl if he could find her.
"It is no trouble at all," he insisted and grabbing his hat rushed out into the patio immediately dismissing all about the brief case. He paused and looked around for the Spanish dancing girl.

She was nowhere to be seen. In annoyed disappointment he sauntered
over to the fountain and from the wide tiled edge picked up Dolores' gaily decorated guitar that the peon left when he finished accompanying her in the dance.

While bending over the clear fountain pool he saw a vision mirrored in its depth that held him spell bound with admiration. The girl he sought was watching him from the balcony above as she listened and admired
with sparkling eyes.

Terry knew that the fairest colleen of all Ireland could not compare with her in beauty and sweet allurements.
He drew back and smiled at the memory of her lovely reflection in the water. Then straightening up with the guitar in his hands, he began strumming and as he played he tuned ca-quique wine glasses. He pretended he had no idea anyone was there. Like the Pied Piper of Hamelin his music lured Dolores from the vine covered retreat and with eager interest she listened with sparkling eyes.

Terry moved closer and closer to the balcony as he played and then when he was directly beneath her he suddenly looked up, smiled mockingly and caught her by surprise.

"Oh!" she exclaimed starting nervously. There was no time to retreat
She was conscious of blushing but not her smile.

"Senorita come down—please coax-ed Terry.

Dolores said "No very faintly but shook her head vigorously.

"Come down and play for me," he pleaded holding out the guitar. "I can only strum. Play 'Spanish Moonlight'— I have always wanted to hear it by someone who knew how—I am sure you do," he flattered irresistibly.

By good Irish luck he had mentioned her favorite air. She hesitated only a moment and then with a laugh because she knew she was doing wrong
Dolores ran lightly down the steps and held out both hands for the instrument.

THE PAPER'S POSITION TO
THE COMMUNITYA writer to a newspaper colleague in a nearby town has a few pointed remarks in his letter relative to the value of the local newspaper to the community. The letter was prompted by an editorial appearing in that paper in which the editor set forth a few facts squarely to his local businessmen.Here are the words of the correspondent."I was personally very interested in your paper the other day to read how you put the facts squarely up to the businessmen of your town. If the paper should cease publication for a time
there would be sure to be something doing for a small town these days is certainly lost without a home paper,
and no matter how many outside papers come in the community there is nothing with the home touch of the local printer, and it would sure be missed.""In days past there have been those who looked upon the support given to a local paper as so much money spent for the general good, but that has been exploded, and it is now a case of the businessmen of the community getting results from their newspaper advertising that can be had in no other way and it is very noticeable, all over this country that the most prosperous cities are those whose merchants use the local paper in season and out to keep their public informed of their doings."Then again a newspaperman may be giving of his energies and money in an endeavor to publish a paper that appeals to the reading public and there have been a few who could afford to do this as a hobby, but the average newspaperman of today cannot do this forever and now it is a case of the support given to the paper, the better paper can be produced and it is a well-known fact that there never was a business that gives more to the community than the local printer."SPLENDID PORT WELL STATEDInterest attaches to the plan of the Probus club of Calgary to keep the highway between Calgary and High River clear of snow during the winter months. With the rapid increase in the use of automobiles and auto trucks
both by urban and rural communities
the matter of keeping roads open in winter becomes proportionately an increasingly important matter. (The Pro-bus club which is composed of young business men believes that roads can be kept open for all-year traffic at a comparatively low cost and it has decided to take over the Calgary-High River highway to show conclusively that the difficulty can be overcome at a moderate cost. The funds that are required for the work have been subscribed by themselves.In this particular instance a section of heavily settled territory has been chosen as the scene of operations. The Probus club is confident that winter traffic between city and country in this area will be stimulated if the snow is removed from the road as it falls. It was ready for last week-end precipitation and today the highway is in fine shape for its full width and it will be kept in this condition.

If this experiment proves successful and there is no doubt of this, the effect will be to interest not only the other towns and cities of the province in the all-year traffic campaign but also the rural dwellers and the provincial government. With one automobile to less than every ten persons in Alberta and with the number and the variety of uses of cars being augmented so steadily it will only be a matter of time when the people of this province will insist on main roads being kept open all year and the Probus club is rendering a valuable service in demonstrating that no insuperable obstacles present themselves in the accomplishment of this end—HeraldX-RAY REVEALS*GEM THEFTSSwallowing a diamond may not be

THE EXAMINER'S WEEKLY REVIEW OF PROV. MARKETS

CATTLE
 BEEF—Market at Edmonton was active under a slightly heavier run of cattle. Choice heavy steers brought from $7.50 to $7.75, choice light $7.50 to $7.75, good $7.25 to $7.50, medium $6.50 to $6.75, common $5.50 to $5.75. Choice heifers $6.25 to $6.50, good $5.75 to $6.00, medium $4.75 to $5.00, common $3.50 to $3.75. Cows $3.00 to $3.25, good $2.75 to $3.00, medium $2.50 to $2.75, common $2.00 to $2.25. Steers $1.50 to $1.75, good $1.25 to $1.50, medium $1.00 to $1.25, common $0.75 to $1.00. Hogs $1.50 to $1.75, good $1.25 to $1.50, medium $1.00 to $1.25, common $0.75 to $1.00.

EGGS
 Edmonton market quotations are $8.25 on the thick smooths and $8.75 on selects.

SHEEP
 Receipts were heavier at Calgary this week but Edmonton reports no change in the market.

GRAIN
 Threshing has been held up in this province by the snow storm which came at the early part of the week. Bulk of threshing however is over Winnipeg market holding steady.

BUTTERFAT—BUTTER
 BUTTERFAT—Receipts light, as farmers find it hard to get to towns with what they have to move. Prices show no change. CREAMERY BUTTER—Make light; sales reported holding up well. Coast under heavy New Zealand offerings. Another boat expected there on Friday of this week. Net performed well as a second crop wheat on spring-plowed stubble, harvesting 41 bu. per acre. Mr. Boyd reports to show 75 acres of spring-plowed stubble to Garnet wheat in 1928.

POULTRY—EGGS
 POULTRY—Receipts since Thanksgiving light but heavier offerings expected now that first flurry of snow is here. Chickens and fowl composed bulk of handlings. Most of birds in good condition. Demand is clearing up market readily. As soon as offering increase jobbers will most likely start storing. Prices hold steady. Ducks meeting fair trade but geese are slow. Turkey supply light, as pullets have been put out of stride by cold weather. Storage of geese to be light for time as receipts there are low and prices have worked higher. Good demand on local markets.

POTATOES
 Jobbers believe that it is possible that cold weather will help to strengthen supplies had been received during the past few days which will give trade a chance to clean off offerings already on market. Jobbers quoting $17.20 per ton for spuds delivered.

FURS
 Market said to be little easier owing to eastern trade not having started yet. Number of coyote pelts being offered which are in poor shape. Expect rush to start in about another ten days. Prices steady.

HIGH RIVER AIR STATION CLOSING FOR WINTER

The High River air station will be abandoned for the winter and the planes which have been in operation there will be transferred to other points in the Dominion. Capt. R. Colby, officer commanding the station, is being moved to Ottawa for the winter months and other officers will be stationed at Winnipeg. New planes are expected for the High River station next spring, and those which will be employed as formerly on forest patrol service.

RECORDS FROM FARM ILLUSTRATION STATION

The following remarks by Mr. R. Everett, supervisor of Dominion illustration farm, regarding the returns this year from the farm of Mr. G. C. Boyd north of town, makes interesting reading. Mr. Everett reports that Garnet and Marquis wheats were sown on summer fallow land on May 9th. The Garnet was harvested on August 23rd while it was September 2nd when the Marquis was reaped. Speaking of the threshing the supervisor found that Garnet gave a return of 45 bu. 12 bu. per acre while the Marquis threshed out 49 bu. 48 lbs. although the Garnet graded higher than the Marquis. Garnet net performed well as a second crop wheat on spring-plowed stubble, harvesting 41 bu. per acre. Mr. Boyd reports to show 75 acres of spring-plowed stubble to Garnet wheat in 1928.

Westinghouse SPECIAL only $7800 Stripped

The Greatest Value in Radio

Never before has so fine a set been offered for so little money. For sure reception, selectivity, tone quality and volume, the 57 outperforms any other set anywhere near its price.

All the improvements found in higher priced sets are embodied in this set including one dial control. The new Westinghouse Radiotron UX-201-B is used which consumes but half the filament current of other tubes of equal power.

The 57 represents the last word in performance and radio value. Hear a demonstration in your own home or at our showrooms to-day.

Don't Tell The Wife

Copyright 1926 Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

by
WILLIAM B. COUNTRY

"DON'T TELL THE WIFE" starring Irene Rich, is a Warner Bros. production of this novel

"Remember, now, don't tell the wife!"

Mrs. Telford and the other furred ones were in the mind to put Clare, Clemence and her blonde widow wife on the task of ferreting out of Livingstone Stinner what all the mystery was about.

But Clare, strange to say had a rather well-defined sense of the fitness of certain things. A much deeper and cleverer slant and attack than her purring confederates. She adopted a moosey quietness—tipped about demure and subdued, and appeared quailed by the near-tragedy; made no eyes at Ranny and was docile and affectionately partial to Stinner.

Clare knew the gentle art of biding time.

CHAPTER XVI

It was a whole week after their return home before Ranny could get a word, edgewise or otherwise with Joan. Immediately upon landing at Glen Cove she had engaged a taxi and driven off alone and aloof.

At home she had closed herself in her apartment taking her meals there carefully going out for airings and so forth only when assured that Ranny was not at home and not likely to encounter her.

(The sum total of information that Ranny could get out of Joan's personal maid was by bribery and cajolery was "Madame ees packing air. She ees going to Europe so soon she get fine Miesieur!"

He bluffed and hulled his way into her boudoir one night finally.

The state Joan turned upon him was utterly impersonal, profoundly indifferent.

"You needn't look so plagued remote—as though you had never seen this poor fish before! he began lamely and mirthlessly, and very white of face.

No answer.

"I—I—there's something I think you ought to know Joan," he went on. Then as he talked he grew a little more confident. Not at all chatty though. Not the Ranny of old, taking things for granted. Serious, serious and businesslike.

"I'm going away," he explained hurriedly. "There's no need for you to leave here. I'm going to clear out. I realize the mess things have become—the mess that I've made of them. I won't tax your patience by trying to explain anything. I'll just go—out of your life forever—like a bad dream!"

Ranny had practiced that line in front of his mirror until he had got just the right wrinkle of wistful pathos into his brow and the most dramatic quaver possible in his voice. He had figured it would make a great dent in Joan's coldness. But "Indeed! How interesting!" she intoned musically, in exactly the same way she would have done if a footman had told her he had ingrowing toenails.

Cold sweat started upon Ranny's forehead, but he stuck to his appointed conduct and words, and gulped.

"I've put a deal through with Livingstone Stinner. He's taken me into a sort of partnership. It's a jolly enough job too. I'm a sort of travelling field manager. Have to make the rounds of his chief lumber camps all over the country, straightening out any labor or business tangles, spurring production, and all that sort of thing, you know. Rather a two-handed job, and have to be bullied without gloves."

"Work you are ideally fitted for," she commented maliciously.

"Oh I say Joan—don't go on cringing range over a harmless prank that just got a bit out of hand I regret it all. And I'm willing to do any lengths to set myself four-square with you and Abner. Fact is, I've invited him up tonight so that we three can talk things over."

"You've WHAT?"

"I said I've invited Abner to come here tonight! Listen Joan I know things are hopelessly out of whack between you and I—"

"Really your discernment is remarkable—almost psychic!"

"—and more than anything else in the world I want to see you happy! What touching nobility!"

"Please Joan save your sarcasm until you've heard me out. I propose to let you and Abner have each other now that seems to be the thing that'll make you happy."

"But," she snapped icily, "that all very well for you to suddenly become so broad-minded about Abner but you're overlooking the fact that you're views and mine of morals are radically opposed. You cannot understand that a virtuous woman enchained by marriage will still her heart's inclination!"

"But divorce ends the need for scruples and I'm going to arrange a divorce for you."

"Ranny! joyfully, incredulously you are really going to give me a divorce!"

"I am. That's why I've sent for Abner. To tell you my plans to give you both a little fatherly advice—"

"Ranny you old dear, I knew that some day your instinct of play plus the sporting thing! I'm willing to forgive you now, even preaching—though that's a strange role for you—"

"It isn't that I want to preach, exactly, but out of my experience as a benedict—my and experience, I might say—there are a few material hints I can give a lad with a twenty thousand year income about supporting a wife accustomed to using a five hundred thousand a year of her husband's money."

"How do you know Abner's income with quick interest."

"Stinner's bank is trustee for the Gratman estate. Of course Abner needn't worry much about his own rather impoverished circumstances because the million odd a year that you have in your own right will help out. A marriage for love, but it won't be so bad for Abner, eh? Of course you are madly in love with him Joan?"

"Well, yes, I guess—don't say madly by thought old dear. Don't exaggerate!" she said slowly, rather thoughtfully.

"Then also I think I'd ought to advise him to take up athletics exercise, gymnasium, and that rot. A husband ought to be in tip top shape always. For in these days of bandits of what-not, a chap never knows when he'll have to fight for his wife."

"But, quickly changing the subject 'what are your plans for getting the divorce?"

"Nothing simpler. My first trip will be to Minnesota. I'll establish a home and at the end of six months I'll merely prove that you've never lived with me. Under the laws of that state, there for I am a wronged and deserted husband deprived of the services and company of my wife, and justly entitled to the relief contemplated by a divorce."

"What got into you all of a sudden Ranny? A week ago you wouldn't hear of a divorce, and now you can rattle state divorce laws off like an ambulance chaser."

"Nothing got into me except a desire to sacrifice in order to assure your happiness."

"Sacrifice yourself? My dear it's YOU who will be suing me for divorce."

"Desertion is the easiest and least distressing cause for suit. Even that we'll have to manufacture. And it will save you a lot of time and bother if you'll let me do all the dirty work of preparing the way. You see, one of the drawbacks of having a model has hand like me—albeit if I must say it myself—is that it—he—l—gives—save you no legal or moral justification for carrying him. There are no possible grounds for you to sue me on except—"

"Well!"

"Well, exactly—and as Heaven is my witness, I've never been that!"

"Of course the night of terror you subjected me to last week was an act of loving kindness!"

"Come now Joan! said Ranny that little excursion wasn't entirely my fault. It was Abner's for cutting the dory loose. Whatever his virtues as a lover, frankness compels me to remark that the lad does lack sense. If it hadn't been for you he'd have gone down. Oh, well that's none of my affair. It was about to remark that inasmuch as I was not insane, felon, impotent, consanguineous, or already married, when we were married the only possible chance for you would be to catch me at—er—misconduct, infidelity with another woman, as it were. And of course that's virtually with a perish the thought shrug "such a charge would be absurd against one of my well known impeccable morality."

"Indeed!"

"Look here now Joan. I don't like the tone that 'indeed!'"

"To be blunt then, I'm not so sure of your self-vaunted virtue. You were positively shameless with that nasty little blonde widow—"

"She's alright! Don't be too tough on her!"

"Defending her eh? I'm growing less and less sure about the distinctness of your willingness to get a divorce for MY sake!"

"Well—I—"

"Why can't you look me in the eye? Why can't you give me a straightforward answer? I don't make me believe that you are doing all this for MY sake—"

"What else could be my motive dear?"

"You're evasive. That's a suspicious sign. And it isn't loyal. Anyway I've admitted my love for Abner. You ought to be honorably frank too!"

"But laughing heartily, 'I tell you there is no one."

"See you can't say it without laughing!"

"Oh! serious again, but I can. No one can ever take your place in my heart. I shall live alone with my memories!"

"In the words of the cop who keeps company with our cook—appliance. 'Really dear, You're very silly!'"

"Silly I like that! What difference could it make to me now if, for instance you told me that you wanted this divorce so that you could marry—well, let's see say Mrs. Clemence!"

"Clare!"

"Oh, 'Clare' eh? How familiarly and naturally you call her by her first name. Come now, doesn't that make it plain?"

"Certainly not, and I must say it is not becoming for you to jealously drag her into our private troubles!"

Canadian Buyers Profit by Canada's Export Trade

IN the distant reaches of Britain's far-flung empire you will find General Motors cars, built in Canada by Canadian craftsmen, from Canadian materials.

In five years over 110,000 automobiles have been sent overseas by General Motors of Canada to carry the standard of Canadian quality around the world.

This represents a truly important contribution to Canada's export trade.

It represents millions of dollars to be spent in wages to Canadian workmen, in the purchase of Canadian metals, wood, hides and the countless other materials entering into the manufacture of General Motors cars.

And it represents a greatly augmented production of General Motors of Canada, resulting in lower costs of manufacture, in economies of purchasing, in greater savings of time and labor through greater volume.

Thus, because in India, in Egypt, in Malta, Ceylon or South Africa, someone is buying a General Motors car from Canada, General Motors can offer to you, in Canada, a product of higher quality at a lower price than otherwise possible.

HAPPENINGS OF LOCAL INTEREST

THE OFFICIAL OPENING OF THE RINK, WHICH FOR THIS SEASON WILL BE UNDER CONTROL OF THE LOCAL B.P.O.E. WILL TAKE PLACE THURSDAY AT 8 p.m. WITH A BIG FREE NIGHT FOR EVERYONE. THE TOWN BAND WILL BE DONATING THEIR SERVICES. TOO FOR THE OCCASION, SO COME AND HAVE A GOOD TIME. DON'T FORGET THURSDAY NIGHT. 8 p.m. THE ICE IS IN SPLENDID SHAPE.

We regret to learn that Mrs. Alex. Swanson is sick these days, and wish her better.

The big Fall whist party under the auspices of the Catholic church will be held on Wednesday November 22nd beginning at 8.30 p.m. sharp in the theatre. There will be accommodation for all this time at the theatre has been enlarged. The usual good time, good supper, and good prizes will be provided. Save the date and watch for prize display.

Mr. A. Wheaton is the latest possessor of a new Pontiac coach which he purchased from Dupre's garage at the week end.

The big annual firemen's dance is slated for tonight at the theatre, and according to the Fire-chief Joe all may rest assured of a real good time.

Radio Sets and Orthophonic Victrolas on convenient terms at the Wainwright Pharmacy Ltd.

What will possibly prove the true record for this district in grain returns is handed in by Tommy Hill of Green Shields. Mr. Hill threshed 538 bushels of Redfleur wheat from a piece of land consisting of nine acres thus getting 62 bushels average for this piece.

Mr. Ryan Millar, of Alliance, formerly on the staff of the Bank of Montreal here, and Mr. and Mrs. T. Elliott of Galtland, motored over to visit friends last week.

Farmers—Get rid of your extra poultry. Don't keep the "boarders". The Burs' creamery will buy these any day and give you highest prices. See Fred Harrington, manager.

We are glad to know that Mr. A. MacLellan, who was hurt last week through a scared team, is now all better.

Changes have taken place this week at the Bank of Montreal. Mr. C. Mackay who was accountant here has been promoted to re-open the bank's branch at Botha, Alta, and left on Thursday. He is succeeded here by Mr. F. Redgwell of Calgary, who arrived on Monday.

Come in and get some flooring, plaster board, and storm windows, and make your home warm for the winter. You will find this at the Atlas Lumber yard; phone 57.

The plans are complete for the building of a "Hard Times" dance at the theatre. This will be handled by the local lodge of the B.P.O.E. and will be given on Wednesday, December 7th next.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Laird last week when a full family gathering celebrated the wedding anniversary of this young couple.

A 50c ticket will give you one of the best musical concerts of the season Friday evening next at the United church.

In keeping with the occasion all the whistles etc. noted the Armistice Day rejoicings in town. Flags etc. were conspicuous too, for the event.

Don't delay. Order your storm sash so that we can have them ready for you before the weather gets too severe. Atlas Lumber Co. Phone 57.

The Rev. T. Powell, superintendent of missions of the United church was in charge of the local services over the week end. He preached at Greenshield on Sunday afternoon, too.

THIRD AVE. OFF. RINK

Winter is here! The dangerous time for fires. Look after your chimneys and stove pipes; and if you have not enough fire insurance, why not protect your home in one of the strong companies represented by Joe Welch? Phone 57 and find out!

Many of his old friends in the district will be sorry to hear that Mr. Fleming Fountain of L.A. Angeles, Calif., who was formerly a G.T.P. conductor in Wainwright, met with a train accident on November 2nd. His right foot has now been amputated, but no serious complications are looked for.

A complete line of Xmas cards and gifts will be on display at Wainwright Pharmacy following the "One Cent Sale" this week.

And—Tomorrow night get out the old skates, and boots and get down to the rink where the Elks are holding a "Nite" for all T.A. hand will be there too!

Last call! The big fall sale at Armstrong's closes Saturday next.

The ten head of yak which arrived from Rocky Mountain park a couple of weeks ago, are now all turned out with their brothers here and getting acclimated to their new big home in the National park.

The semi-annual bazaar and sale of home cooking arranged by the ladies of St. Thomas' W.A. is to be held in the restaurant on November 19th. Tea will be served, from 2 till 6 p.m.

Mr. Chas. Newport took another run up from Marsden last week end on business.

If you have Electric lights and are interested in Radio, investigate the new Batteryless sets at Wainwright Pharmacy.

Corpl. F. Moore, A.P.P., has been promoted to the charge of the Stony Plain detachment near Edmonton. He left on Saturday and the officers in charge here now is Sergt. J. Stewart, formerly of the headquarters staff. He will be assisted by Cons. Winnick formerly of Red Deer.

Put in your supply of Black Diamond coal for the winter. Of course you will get this at the Atlas yard. Phone 57.

The thermometer is slowly but surely sinking to its winter's rest! On Saturday last the mercury found the eighteen below mark!

This is the worst season for fires. Have your property well insured in one of the strong companies represented by Joe Welch. Phone 57.

a very responsible position. Later the company of "Renton, Newcastle-on-Tyne Limited" was formed, and he acted as managing director for that company for 13 years. During this period he has spent many years in research work.

The latter company has agencies in Belfast, Ireland; Ferrol, Spain; Durrazza, Albania; Brussels, Belgium; London, Liverpool and Manchester, England; and Glasgow, Scotland. This company also under the direction of Mr. Renton sold their goods to such people as: The Anglo Persian Oil Co. at Neath, South Wales; Sir W. G. Armstrong Whitworth & Co.; The Cargo Fleet Iron Company Limited; Canadian Pacific Ocean Service; The London County Council; Lambton Atton & Helton Colliers Limited; Workington Iron Steels Company Limited; River Tyne Commissioners; Alington Coal Company Limited; Sunbeam Motor Car Company Limited; Cochran & Company Limited and many others.

For the benefit of the Canadian public who wish to purchase Canadian goods manufactured by a British expert the following are among the products to be manufactured by the company:

"Gudrum" Auto Oils, "Acme" tractor oils, "Superb" tractor oils and "Graphol" oils. These are all made in several consistencies to meet the requirements of our hot summers and rigid winters.

Other oils to be manufactured are machinery and lubricating brands, as well as floor oils and oil for belt dressing.

Axle grease, tractor grease, cup and gun grease and gear compound. Engineers hand soap and lined oil soap are also among their products. Castor oil and tractor oils and soft soap add their quota to the long list of products too.

Possibly one of the most called for lines of this company will prove to be their "colliery grease." The lubricating qualities of this compound are unequalled and this will be all made right in Wainwright with crude Wainwright oil. Mr. Renton claims this to be par excellence for wagon axles and such like lubrication.
